E-mail the office of your elected officials or an influential decision-maker to advocate for your call-to-action.

WRITE A LETTER
Personalized letters are a great way to get in touch with decision makers. Find the address of their office and even include photos, newspaper clippings, and more.

HAVE AN IN-PERSON MEETING
Reach out to the office of your elected officials or others who have a direct impact on your cause. Schedule an appointment if you are able to.

ATTEND AN EVENT
Many representatives hold town halls where constituents can come and ask questions about new policies or government plans. You can also attend lectures or speeches to learn more about their platforms.

CREATE A PETITION
Create a petition to show your representatives or a decision-maker how many people support your action! Share the petition online or in person.

START A MARCH
Protesting against policies you disagree with or marching for a cause are ways to get the attention of a decision-maker.

PLAN GROUP ACTIVITIES
Throw a "call your decision-maker" pizza party or tie-dye t-shirts while one half of your club calls a decision-maker, and then switch!

REGISTER TO VOTE
Register to vote for your representatives. If you're not old enough to vote, you can register others in your community!

RAISE AWARENESS
Write an opinion article for your local newspaper, hold a community softball game, or encourage your club to begin a social media campaign to raise awareness and draw attention to your action.
